Chevy Saved

When a black and white kitty was brought to Mohawk Hudson Humane Society (MHHS) by a good Samaritan, he was terribly frightened and obviously in pain. Our staff immediately rushed him to our veterinarian, who determined that the little stray had probably been hit by a car and his leg was fractured in several places. He was promptly made comfortable with pain medication. Our veterinarian determined that the leg would have to be amputated.

After removal of his leg, he went to foster care, where he was named Chevy. He spent three weeks in the home of one of our most experienced foster parents. Chevy quickly learned to get around on three legs, not only walking, but running around the house. Once he got more comfortable, his true nature as a cuddler came out.

Now in his new home, Chevy is doing great. He stays inside and cuddles up to his new family, thanks to our veterinary staff and our supporters who made it all possible.

From the Director

I often hear from people that they are frustrated about how often we see stories of animal cruelty and nothing happens to the offender or he/she is never found. Recently, we had a different kind of outcome for one of the worst cases in our region's history. The story started with three puppies abused and abandoned on railroad tracks in Albany. One puppy would die soon after arriving at MHHS, but the other two would thrive and become known as the "Railroad Puppies."

would die soon after arriving at MHHS, but the other two would thrive and become known as the "Railroad Puppies."

We told you the Railroad Puppies' story in a previous edition of Capital Pet, but that's not where it ended. In this case, someone was caught and charged not only with crimes related to the puppies, but also their parents. Soon after being arrested the first time, the same person was arrested again for keeping four adult dogs in a U-Haul truck in below-freezing temperatures. Two of the dogs turned out to be the parents of the Railroad Puppies. One of the dogs gave birth to puppies soon after her arrival.

It's easy to figure out that the man who bred these puppies, abandoned them and left their parents to die in a freezing cold truck is a bad guy, but there's another story to tell. That story is about the community that came together to stop him. For this person to be caught and prosecuted, we needed two police agencies to assign investigators to their cases, a District Attorney's office to designate a special prosecutor who works on all of Albany's animal cruelty cases, veterinarians who will help heal these animals, and a community that supports MHHS where all of the abused animals came to recover and find new homes.

All of these agencies have many responsibilities and challenges to face. It is because we have a community advocating for animals and for our MHHS that they all come together to focus on defenseless animals. We have been playing a leading role in educating local law enforcement about animal cruelty laws and have been partnering with the District Attorney's office to make sure that anywhere animal cruelty occurs, those crimes can be prosecuted.

At a state level, we have been educating legislators about problems with animal protection, in terms of both the cruelty laws and regulation of large-scale puppy mills. We are starting to see progress, but we still have a long way to go. We get the attention of legislators and local officials because they can see that when someone commits acts of cruelty, concerned members of our community speak up and will not tolerate these crimes going unpunished.

I ask that you continue speaking up for animals. With your support, we will continue to do the same.

Shiloh Healed

The day after Christmas was a lucky one for Shiloh. She appears to have spent Christmas Day wandering the streets of Albany, but on the 26th, she would be brought to MHHS. It was immediately apparent she'd had a tough time on the streets: Shiloh had two long wounds running up the right side of her body.

Our veterinarian examined her and said it looked like she had been burned, possibly while trying to keep warm on a car engine or exhaust. We all know burns can be extremely painful, but Shiloh was sweet and friendly. Our staff treated her wounds and made her comfortable, but it looked like she would always bear the large scars of her difficult journey on the streets — until Dr. Tara Estra from Canterbury Animal Hospital came along.

Dr. Estra had recently acquired the latest in laser therapy equipment. While Dr. Estra had obtained the device primarily to treat her clients suffering from arthritis and other inflammatory conditions, the laser is also a great way to heal wounds like the burns Shiloh experienced. We thought Shiloh would always have long scars along her side, but after a few laser treatments by Dr. Estra and a little healing time in a foster home, you couldn't tell Shiloh had endured such trauma.

Shiloh is now in a great new home where she'll stay safe and indoors, and get the attention she so richly deserves.

Annual Donor Report 2012

The Society is grateful for the steadfast support of many thousands of donors each year, all of whom allow MHHS to maintain its position as the Capital Region's leader in animal sheltering and adoption, humane education, advocacy and collaborative programming. We look forward to continuing our partnership with the community. With your help, we will continue to fulfill our mission of improving the lives of homeless and abused animals through sheltering, adoption, education and advocacy, and the prevention of animal cruelty. Our Board of Directors, staff and volunteers — and the animals we care for — thank you for your past and continued support.
